Customised UI

The user interface on Embedded Linux devices is important, as it determines the look and feel of your product. In Embedded Linux there are many different projects for graphics and UIs. It is critical to make the right "mix and match" at the early stage of your product development. Our consultancy services can help you to change the look and feel of your embedded device, and we can give you a number of options for different sizes of displays.